

How to prepare an abstract that will be accepted and placed in the session of your dreams.

Your abstract should include an introduction, clear statement of the problem and your hypotheses. You should also note the materials and methods you employed. The program committee expects to see evidence of data analysis in your abstract. However, you should not include tables or figures. Finally, your abstract should have a conclusion, which convinces us that the abstract makes an important contribution to the field.

Please notice the following format issues: 1. The title is in bold type, and only the first word and proper nouns are capitalized. 2. There is a single space between the title and the list of authors, and between the latter and the abstract text. 3. The names of authors and their associations are part of this word file. The authors' names are in capital letters, but not their associations. Note that we are asking that you include the first name (not initials) of the authors so that we may produce an accurate index. If you are part of the list of authors of more than one abstract, make sure that your name is the same in each abstract, so that we can index all abstracts to your name. This year we will not accept more than 10 authors per abstract. The abstract itself should not exceed 250 words (this does not include the list of authors, the title, the grant acknowledgement, the podium/poster preference, the authors' availability to be Chair, and the symposium title, if any).

This study was funded by Agency Generous, grant number 000.

Preference for delivery medium: You choose, but we ask that you consider posters, since we can only accommodate a limited number of podium presentations. OR: This abstract is part of the symposium titled "A great symposium", organized by Great Organizer.

The following authors are willing to Chair the session: PROSPERO OF MILAN and BENEDICK OF PADUA.

Please assign this abstract to the following sessions: Choose your top three from the call for papers.
